

Screenings can be fun for children

Mile Bluff Medical Center offers early childhood screenings twice a year. They are free, and parents with children birth to five years of age are invited to attend. Participants are screened by a speech/language pathologist, an audiologist, and by an occupational and physical therapist to assess motor and communication skills.

Pictured is Jannah Madsen, one year, at the screenings held in April. She is enjoying playing with the blocks, which are just one example of the many fun tools used by therapists to assess a child's ability.

The next round of early childhood screenings will be held in the fall at Hess Memorial Hospital. Call 608-847-1414 for more information!

Women, save the date: September 30

Attention women of all ages, when is the last time you took some time to focus solely on yourself?

If between the errands, chores and family obligations you've put yourself on the back burner, I encourage you to take a night for yourself this fall and join us for the first annual women's night out in Juneau County as we kick off Breast Cancer Awareness Month.

The event will be held Tuesday, September 30 at Mauston High School. The evening begins with a dinner and some time to visit booths to gather information and receive health screenings. Following dinner you will be invited to attend a question and answer session with experts in women's wellness from Mile Bluff and UW Health. The evening will conclude with an uplifting presentation by Mary Marcdante. The award-winning international speaker, certified laugh leader and author will help you regain enthusiasm for life.

Mary has written the books 'Living with enthusiasm' and 'My mother, my friend,' and has contributed to five best-selling 'Chicken soup for the soul' books. She is an expert in guiding women through self-discovery to transform adversity into adventure, boredom into breakthrough, chaos into calm, and depression into delight.

Step away from the duties of everyday life and focus on you and your health. Let's live, love, laugh and learn together with Mary Marcdante! Registration information will be available soon. Visit milebluff.com for details and to watch for future updates.

This event is sponsored by Mile Bluff Medical Center and Mile Bluff Clinic, and is being brought to you with help from Juneau County Public Health, Mauston and New Lisbon schools, Lynn & Gina's Fitness Center, Juneau County Star Times, New Lisbon United Methodist Church, Melisa's Dance & Wellness Center, Relay for Life, and Locks of Love
